Fanfare for few

THE smallest life saving club in Queensland opens on the Sunshine Coast next Sunday with a fanfare from visiting dignitaries. The Ithaca-Bulcock Beach Life Saving Club will patrol Fraser Park and Golden Beach on the northern side of the Gemini Resort.

On the Gold Coast, one of the state's largest clubs says it is battling local apathy. Surfers Lifesaving Club president Mr Arthur Moffrey complained yesterday that despite support from some local businesses, many others were taking the club's beach safety role for granted and were too tight-fisted to sign up as VIP members.
